DU MAURIER'S DEATH

Sketch of the Career of the Late Tale-Teller and Satirist.

SPRUNG INTO PROMINENCE ON PUNCH

Not an Acknowledged Wit, But Almost Always as Happy as Was His Designs---Extraordinary Popus larity of His Stories.

London, Oct. 9 .- The death yesterday of George Du Maurier, or more properly, George Louis Palmella Busson Du Maurier, for such was the portentous name he bore, will be a greater loss to society at large than would be that of many a greater man. This popular tale-teller and social satirist was of French eqtraction, his paternal grandparents having fled to England during the Terror and settled in London, but he was a British subject by birth, although he first saw the light in Paris and lived there until he was seventeen years old. Then he was taken to England and sent to University college, London, where he studied chemistry. It soon became evident, however, that he was not destined to shine in this branch of study, whereas he had given many indications of his artistic predilections in his constant production of sketches and caricatures. It was determined, therefore that he should go to Paris to learn painting under the direction of M. Gleyre, and, later on, he proceeded to Antwerp and busseldorf. It was in the former town that he was stricken with the Enkness that deprived him of the sight of one eye and, for some time, threatened him with the loss of the other. After escaping this peril he returned to London and set to work to earn his living as an illustrator, dwelling in humble lodgings with his friend Lionel Henley, and winning a bare subsistence from day to day, not always knowing, indeed, where the next day's dinner was to come from. In those days he was a ferocious radical, and was very bitter against the society in which he found soon afterwards his best and most remunerative opportu-

His Work for Punch.

At the age of 26 he begon to furnish occasional contributions to Punch. His skill and humor were developed rapidly and when John Leech died he was invited to fill his place at the famous tabh, and carved his monogram between those of his predecessor and Inaczersy. Mark Lemon was the editor in those days and he was quick to betreive in what direction the powers of his new associate Ay, and advised him not to try to be too funny, but to confide himself to the gently homorous and graceful side of things. It was not long before the weekly work or Ha Maurier came to be regarded as on of the chief attractions of the publive on, and for many years he and the veteran cartoonist. Sir John Tennic: did more than any others to asimiain its reputation for artistic droightsmanship. Although the vast in cornty of his social figures, especially of als women, were modelled from one or woomerinal types, they nevertheless passes a relear and strong individualities, while the framework in which the there set was always artiside and accurate in a del. action degree.

Not an Acknowledged Wit.

Da Maurier, ar noigh not an acknowledged wit was almost always as ha que as he was in his designs. His im gruary conversations, often doubtless taken pretty closely from the life, were evactly appropriate to the society of which the atmosphere was reproduced so faithfully in his pletures. His humor was seldom very rich or very deep, but it was not devoid of en er sparkle or snap, and was eminen, alike for its truthfulness and its refinement. He could fire with unerring aim at folly as it flies but his attook was ever tree from all malice and xity. As a book illustrator he a proved himself a master of pathos zell as humor, and many of his potes are noteworthy for strength and dignity as well as tenderness. Popularity of His Stories.

As an author, his stories were extraordinarily popular. "Peter Ibbetson." his first novel published in 1891, was a surprise to those who had not suspected his literary capacities, and his "Trilby," as everybody knows, commanded an enormous sale, and in its dramatic form is still filling theatres on both sides of the Atlantic. The excitement attending this extraordinary and unforeseen popularity is said to have been one of the chief causes of his physical breakdown. He lived long enough to read all but the very last proofs of his third book, "The Martian."

New York, Oct. 9.—A sight which attracted quite a crowd at the Battery yesterday afternoon was two kites and suspended from the lower one what appeared to be a man. The kites were MRS. CLEVELAND VISITING IN JERSEY sent up by Lieut. H. D. Wise from Governors island, who has been experimenting with them for some time. They are models of Lieut. Wise's and improvements on the Hargreave model. They consist of double acroplanes, the larger one being nine feet square and weighing sixteen pounds. Two kites were sent up, a small one weighing about five pounds and reacting an altitude of nearly 2,000 feet, and below about 400 feet was the larger lite from which was suspended a dummy. The duminy consisted of a regular army uniform stuffed and weighing forty pounds. The test was made to ascertain its usefulness for signal purposes and was quite successful. Further experiments are to be made in the near future when a man instead of a dummy

VICTORY FOR OIL COMPANY. The Pipes Under Pennsylvania Railroad

Tracks Near Belvidere to Stay. Belvidere, N. J., Oct. 9.—The case of the Pennsylvania Railroad company vs. The United States Pipe Line company has been decided in favor of the oil company. It was a suit in ejectment and trespass to compel the oil company to remove two pipes which were placed under a colvert of the railroad company about a mile south of Belvidere. The pipes were laid in the night last August. The suit involved the title to the public road at that point. The il company bought the right to sell at that point and the railroad company contended that no one had the right to sell the right to cross under their railroad. There was considerable excitement over the outcome of the trial, and Judge Gunmere ordered the courtroom doors closed and a constable to bring before him any one who made any demonstration over the verdict.

His remarks were confined almost entirely to thanking his hearers for the ardor with which they received him back home after auabsence of several months. After this altogether unexpected incident in conaection with his arrival, the ex-president and his wife were driven to their North Delaware street home.

Arrived in Washington at an Early Hour This Morning.

Nothing at Present Demanding the President's Attention, He Will Get Down to Work on His Message to Congress.

Washington, Oct. 9.-President Cleveland, accompanied by his private secretary, Mr. Thurber, arrived early this morning in a private car over the Pennsylvania railroad. A carriage was in waiting and the president and his secretary were driven to the white house. The president will get to work as soon as possible on his message to congress. and as there are no matters now demanding his immediate attention he will not likely be interrupted in its preparation. The president journeyed from Buzzards Bay to New York in Mr. Benedict's yacht Oneida and last evening, accompanied by his physician, Dr. William C. Bryant, Miss Bryant and Mr. Thurbur, drove to Daly's theatre, where they witnessed the play "The Geisha." At the close of the performance Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Thurber were driven to Jersey City, where they took the midnight train for Washington. Mrs. Cleveland spent yesterday with friends at Lakewood, N. J., and did not accompany the president. The report from New York that President Clevetand had purchased a tract of land at Hempstead. L. I., and next spring will erect a summer residence there is confirmed. He has abandoned the idea of making a tour of the world at the expiration of his term, mainly for the reason that domestic causes will compel Mrs. Cleveland to have peace and quiet for a time. The property at Hempstead immediately adjoins that of ex-Secretary Whitney, and is within a short distance of E. D. Morgan's home. It is expected that the president and his family will also spend some time here next sum-

They retreated in the direction of the Great Hills. Besides the odicers previously reported killed, a lieutenant colonel lost his life in this engagement. Will Take No Part in the Campaigu. New York, Oct. 9.-National committeeman Frank Campbell was seen late last evening at democratic headquarters. In response to an inquiry he said he had just returned from Albany where he had gone for the purpose of having a consultation with Senator Hill about several matters of importance in the present campaign. Mr. Campbell spent the night at Wolfert's Roost with Senator Hill. When asked as to the position of Senator Hill generally in the canvass Mr. Campbell said: "Senator Hill has been in consultation with those charged with the management of the campaign in this state from the start, and has been and will continue to be of aid to them because of-his interest in the success of he democratic party in state and mion. He is not in sympathy with those democrats who would defeat the ticket because the platform is in some respects unsatisfactory to them. He feels that the position taken by him at Chicago makes it impossible for him to serve his party effectively in this campaign ov any other course than that so ar pursued by him." When Chairman Danforth's attention was called to the interview of Mr. Campbell in reference to Senator Hill's attitude toward the national and state tickets he said that he believed his position was as stated in Mr. Campbell's interview. This interview confirms a previous statement of Mr. Danforth, that Senator Hill would not take any active part in the campaign.

MYSTERIOUS SUICIDE

Bank Treasurer Marsh of Gloucester Kills Himself.

HIS ACCOUNTS SAID TO BE STRAIGHT

The Bank Directors Become Suddenly Reticeut and All Manner of Rumors Are Set Afloat---Cape Ann Greatly Excited.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 9.—The people of this city and, in fact, all residenta of Cape Ann, were thrown into a state of great excitement when it was learned that George J. Marsh, treasurer of the Cape Ann Savings bank, had shot himself fatally in the head at his residence in Annisquam yesterday afternoon. Shortly before 11 o'clock in the forenoon the curtains in the bank were down, the door locked and a notice posted up bearing the following: Bank closed, balance of the day. This caused considerably inquiry and many comments were made. The officials of the bank gathered and quietly went into the rear room and the mystery of the closing of the bank in business hours was discussed. The mystery continued until after 3 o'clock when the terrible fact could no longer ba kept a secret, that the treasurer of the bank had shot himself. The following are the particulars as told by Charles E. Sawyer:

Notified the Directors of His Intention.

John Strum, janitor of the bank, engaged Sawyer to assist him in hauling up a yacht on Mr. Marsh's place. About 12:15, while working about the premises, Mr. Marsh was seen about there and his footsteps heard as he paced up and down inside the house. They suspected nothing wrong. Having completed their work Sawyer proceeded directly up the street. Mr. Strum then entered the house and had occasion to visit the cellar. He had hardly got down stairs when a sight of horror met his eyes, for lying in a heap in front of him on the floor was Mr. Marsh, dead, while alongside of him was a gun. Mr. Strum at once summoned assistance. Dr. Garland responded at once and found Mr. Marsh in the position described. A great hole was through his face and his brains entirely blown out. As nothing could be done Dr. Garland, who is an officer of the bank, at once returned to the city and was in close conference with the directors late in the afternoon. Mr. Marsh agreed to attend a meeting of the trustees of the savings bank in the forenoon. When the trustees met a letter was found in his handwriting directed to Sylvester Cunningham, saying that his (Marsh's) body would be found in the cellar at his summer house at Annisquam. His Accounts Said To Be All Right.

Mr. Marsh was connected with the Addison Gilbert estate and many others, but nothing as yet is known as to the condition of the property. He was no doubt temporarily insane. The bank commissioners, it is said, made an examination of the bank Wednesday, and it is all right beyond question. It as also said that the commissioners were summoned by telegraph, but nothing to corroborate could be learned. The bank is considered one of the strongest minancial institutions in the state, as it has over $3,000,000 on deposit. Mr. Marsh, who had been treasurer for nearly thirty years, was considered a very shrewd manager. It is the opinion of the officials of other banks that the savings bank is all right and that none of its funds have been misapplied. To-day the bank officials have become suddenly reticent and no statement can be gotten from them. Many rumors in connection with the suicide and bank are now

ARE YOU LEFT-HANDED?

Were the Aberigonals Ambidextrous In Their Practice of Art?

Dr. Daniel G. Brinton d scusses the juestion of left-handedness in North American aboriginal art. If hands worked in the past as they do to-day, then in primitive times the left-handed, it would be supposed, were not many Take 100 Americans, and from two to our per cent, only are left-handed This two or four percent may do gerral work better or more easily with he left than with the right hand. In he 95 per cent. of right-handed peode there may be some few who are am bidextrous. "Has this proportion always been the same in the human speores, and does it obtain to-day among avage tribes?" Dr. John Evans, as juoted by Sir Daniel Wilson, believes that there was a "manifest predominence of right-handedness among the valeolithic flint-workers of southern England." On the other side, De Mortillett, after a careful study of 554 stonescrapers coming from France and opinion. In the University of Pennsylvania, among a collection of flints of the very carliest types, found on the Libyan plateau, near Abydos, there are wo, both of which, Dr. Brinton writes are made for a left-handed man. It is diff cult to describe, without giving great space to the subject, how the prehaeologist can exactly determine whether a tool was to be used in the light or the left hand. Studying 200 -tone or flint blades coming from various parts of the United States, the targest proportion was in de for the c'mht-banded. But, nevertheless, there vas "33 per cent. for" probably leftanded persons, or, as Dr. Brinton writes it, "for persons, as I prefer to believe, " * " who were ambidextrous" That there must have been left-handed artists becomes more clear in this way. Ask anyone to draw a profile, and almost invariably the rightharded person makes the face looking to the left, while the left-handed parson's sketch is to the right. In eximining, then, a collection of Amerman aboriginal rock drawings there is a predominance of profiles looking to the left but not infrequent occurrences of profles in the opposite direction Dr Brinten comes to the conclusion that De Mortillet was correct, also that there were more left-handed or am Indextrous American aborigines than Europeans Perhaps, as Dr. Branton indicates it, the specialization of hands came with a more recent culture -American Anthropologist

Lighting a Large City.

Thirteen thousand lamps, gas, electrie and naphtha, are required to illuminate the streets, avenues, parks, docks and bridges of the city of New York. The number of electric lights, slowly but visibly superseding gas lamps for purposes of street illumination, is 3,300, and the city expends in a year more than $1,000,000 for lighting. The appropriation this year is exactly $1,085,330 for lighting the highways and public property.-St. Louis

DRESSING A FISH. The Quickest and Lest Method for Smail Ones.

At this season of the year many are camping or hving in summer cottages by fake or ocean. To those who can take with them a competent cook the knowledge of a quick method of cleaning fish may not be of any practical use; but the real campers are those who eatch their fish, and clean and cook, as well as eat them. To these, although the eatching and the eating may be most enjoyable, the cleaning is always

The quickest and best method for dressing all small fish like perch, bass and croppies, is as follows: Put the fish in a large jan and pour over them scalding bot water. Shake them about in this for a moment, then your it off and rmse the fish in cold water. Now with an old pair of seissors cut off the fins and tails. The Food of School Children.

It is a 1 mentable fact that too little aftent on is given to the hygienic suiroundings of the pupils in the schools and by far too little to the rature of the food and the manner of cating. The aim often seems to be to so prepare the food that it will require little or no mastication before it is swallowed, and when sold food is tallen it is not sufficiently masticated to properly prepare it for the digestive organs. Some years ago a doctor requested many of his patients to report as to the number of bit suffrequired to masticate different foods. Perspectiffy disped to learn how wouch less children chewed the food before exallowing it than their parents. He got reports from 150 intelligent people, and learned that practice in this regard varied very much, that children generally were entirely too apt to bolt their food. To encourage the habit of chewing it more thoroughly he had advised parents to give the children chewing-gum, much to the disguet of many of the parents. He thought the habit of swallowing food before it was sufficiently masticated the cause of insufficient nourishment in many cases.—N. Y. Ledger.

Fossil Hunting and Its Attendant Vicissitud, s and Emotions Summer Heat a Great Obstacte to Stir cost-

Prof. Henry Fairneld Osburn, cura-American Museum of Natural H.Slory, contributes a paper on "Pichasians Quadrupeds of the flockies," in which

"before describing the animals them selves we may stop to note what our present knowledge of them has cost in human skill and endurance. Every one of these pictures is drawn from a compiete skeleton hewn out of the soud tock, and each of these skeletons represents years and years of ardbous exploration in which Wortman, Latcher, Peterson and others sent out by the American museum, by Princeton or by Yale, have become famous. Our party found the Titanothere in a broiling alkali canyon of South Dakota. Its head was protruding from a bard sandstone coff, and the chest, hurbs and trunk were chiseled out by the men under a rude sheiter which lowered the temperature to 100 degrees. were encouraged to think that the whose beast had been in a standing position. This was probably the case originally, but suddenly they came across a fault; it appeared that the hind limbs had been swept away; and it required two years' more scarching before bones of an animal of a corre sponding size were secured. Every other skeleton has its own story of de termination, disappointment and sur-

"The old lake basins, once on sea level and enriched by the moist, balmy winds of the Pacific, are now elevated from 4,000 to 5,000 feet. The only redeeming feature of their present aspect of absolute burrenness is that the absence of vegetation leaves the old graves and burying grounds bare. Fossil bones and skeletons are not plentiful-far from it; but a trained eye sees a great distance along the bare gullies. cliffs and canyons, and your daily scramble of from 15 to 20 miles enables you to prospect over a vast stretch. You are off in the morning, stiffened by a frosty night. You know by sad experience that the ice in the basins does not promse a cool day. Your backbone is still freezing while the sun begins to broil and blister your skin, and you are the haing embodiments of the famous dessert served by the Jajanese—a hot crust without, an ice within. Your trail begins on the upland, which may be the actual level of the old lake bottom; and, as if walking through a graveyard, you never look for bones until the land breaks away by erosion. "When you reach the edge of this up land you look off into a sea of rock, wild reyond description, and you plunge down the slope to a certain level. Then you follow the level round and round and in and out. Here you are on a seam which Lears fossils. Above and below it are other familiar fossic ferous seams. and between them are barren seams where you will not find a bone if you search till doomsday. This level, perhaps, represents the delta of a great mountain river which swept the animals out with coarse sand, pebbles and debris. Sometimes you walk miles and miles, up and down, day after day, and see nothing but common turtle bones which are so deceptive and tempting at a distance that the foss'l hunter proranely kicks them aside. Turtles are found everywhere, because they swam out, basked in the sunshine in the midlakes and occasionally sank to the bottom, while the carcasses of land animals were buried in the deltas or nearer

"In such a fossil-barren land the heat seems twice as torrid as on the buttes. your muscles and back ache doubly. your torgues lies parched from the last gulp of alkali water, your soul abhors a fossil and longs for the green shade of the cast and the watermelon, when, all of a sudden, a little projecting bone strikes your wearied eye. You fall on your knees and breathe gently on the loose sand; a little scraping, and you see signs of a skull-perhaps of some missing link. The thrill of discovery spreads like an elixir through your frame, and two or three hours later. after carefully cutting out the prize. you walk vigorously back to camplevery inch a man.

"Thus fossil hunting is a life of vicissitudes and emotions. The fossil hunter is predestined to his work. like the sportsman. He returns east in the autumn, vowing he will never go back to the Bad Lands; but as the favorable months of spring come round he becomes more and more restless, until he is off. The country that is as hot as hades, watered by stagnant alkali pools. is almost invariably the richest in fossils. Here, in fact, as you find the great est variety and number of bones, you enjoy the most delightful flights of the scientific imagination; when parched and burned, you conjure before you the glories of these ancient lakes."-Cen tury.

PICTURESQUE RONDA.

Then he went to Ronda, which is a dream of picturesqueness. There is in congruity in the thought that you can make the journey thither as simply as if you were going from New York to Philadelphia. The town, as J. walked through it, seened common place at ..rst-- form on face the cls. for a southern town, where one accepts marvels of for of vertebrate pateontology to the color and light as matters of course His impression was one of awful glar ing heat; of donleys, and donkeys, and more donkeys everywhere: of little low houses so white that one could hardly look at them; of glimpses into long, cool entries, where people were forever standing waiting for an inner door to open. And then, suddenly, there before him was the bridge flurg across that worderful chasm-the bridge that joins old to new Ronda; the bridge that so many artists, since the days of David Roberts, have tried to draw or paint, despairing even while they sought to record the strange, almost exaggerated. picturesqueness of the wild mountain pie Are as Savage as Their Home.

There is something in the contrast that seems to suggest—but with a difference-the gay villages that nestle so confidently at the base of Vesuvius. The strangest part of it is that until one comes to the bridge one does not know, except from the guide book, that the gorge is there at all. Who could suppose that the river, apparently at least, would force its way through the very highest part of the mountain? There is a little Alameda, where one can stand, leaning against the railing, and gaze down for I do not know how many thousands of feet. It is here, of all places, that one realizes the awfu' height of the precipice; but it is from below that one sees the marvel best and most comprehensively—from far below, where one can follow the windings of the white road along the very edge of the cliff, and under stately white gateways, and look to the bridges hanging in the air, as it were, across the roaring stream, as fantastic and unreal and en trancing as any Arabian Nights picture.

It is only as it should be to find the people as fantastic as their high-built own-so grisly and ghoulish, indeed, hat it is hard to talk about them; so savage in their manners that they might drive the more timid traveler quickly away and back to civilization. When anyone comes to draw the great pridge from the appropriate point bereath, the sport of the leading citizens is to gather in crowds upon it, and throw stones upon the rocky hillisides. starting an avalanche which makes the artist who has been foolish enough to go there arop his work and run for his life. Still, I suppose, one must pay somehow for the privilege of visiting the most sensational place in Spain. Its wonderful position, its magnificent bridges, its beautiful little valley, where the finest fruit in Spain is grown, its encircling crown of sierra, make up to a certain extent for the discomfort of staying in its horrible boarding house, among the savage brutes of its population.—Elizabeth Robins Pennel!

Happy Khugeaberg.

The happiest place in Europe is said to be Klingenberg-on-the-Main: It is the one prosperous spot where everyrody has work and an income, and where there are no taxes, either local or imperial, because the income of the municipality suffices for everything and leaves a bonus for distribution besides. Happy Klingenberg! It is all due to a little wisdom and foresight on the part of the local administration many years ago. There are valuable beds of firectay in the neighborhood and these the municipality had the prudence not to sell to make the fortunes of other reople, but retained for the benefit of the town. The profits pay all taxes and the inhabitants get the surplus divided among them. Young men going into the army received this year a present of 15 marks each.—Tit-Bits.

HOOD'S PILLS cure Liver Ills, Billousness, Indigestion, Headache. Easy to take, easy to operate. 27c. THE NEW FARMING.

Bacteria to Be Used to Fertilize the Sol Cheaply.

New discoveries tread close on each other in the realm of microscopic organisms. It is but a few years since the words microbe and bacteria were made a part of our language. It will not be long before farmers will say my microbes as freely as they say my piga or my hens or my cows. For it is no longer the injurious bacteria that are studied, but the advantageous; and it is known that no phase of plant life can go on successfully without the intervention of these n icroscopic aids. So it is to microbes again that we owe the chemical changes that characterize the dairy. The changes from fresh milk to butter are due to the action of useful bacteria. To sterilize milk will keep it fresh for weeks; to expose it to bacteria will hasten its changes of form and quality. Milk is pasteurized or demicrobed by heating it up to 150 deprees Fahrenheit. This kills the bacteria, after which they must be excluded by tight bottling.

The air is simply an ever full laboratory of these minute chemists, they operate on everything, ourselves included Health, as well as disease, is due to invisible neighbors. In our gardens we are learning that cultivation consists not simply in stirring and feeding the soil, but in adding to it or removing from it those bacteria that affect plant growth. It will not be long before every farmer will have what he may call his bacteria stable, as much as he low has his horse stable. In fact, we are likely to lose our horses, but not be able to get on at all without microbes. Such a stable or room will hold not only apparatus and substances for destroving fungoid attacks that destroy the right vital processes of plants, but it will hold cultures of beneficial m: crobes. These can be preserved and put in useful conditions, as yeast is prepared for the kitchen or "pure cul-tures" of bacteria for the dairyman.

The most recent discovery along this ine is that of the famous Prof. Nobbe. of Saxony. He has made it a specialty to prepare what we might call formers' yeast, or bacteria, useful for plant growth, in such form that a farmer may sow it in his field, or otherwise bring it into contact with the seed that he places in the ground.

It is only a few years since it was found that the leguminous plants, by some means, could directly extract nitrogen from the air. On the roots of clover you will find small and very beautiful nodules. These, it was surpected, had something to do with the nitrogen, but it was a long while before it was found out that these nodules were the work of bacteria; that at fir-t they are parasitic growths, which later became passive, and that then the bacteria permeate the clover or the bean plant and give a new facultythat of nitrogen fixation. But it is not the same bacteria that aids the clover and the beans. It was clear that if this Power could be transferred, or inoculated, just as we inoculate flour with yeast, it would be of great value to agriculture. A new field of experiment was pened. Hereafter it would be sought not only to destroy mischievous bacterma, but to multiply and transplart the useful. It was found that where pacteria had worked in cooperation with beans or clover the soil was richer in nitrogen rather than poorer, and that such soil could be sowed upon and worked into other soil poor in nitrogen to give it power to extract nitrogen from the air. This was to cultivate and sow the nitrogen-feeding bacteria But it took from 1,500 to 2,000 pounds of such prepared soil to fertilize un acre This was expensive and practically nulbfied the utility of the discovery.

Prof Nobbe set about endeavoring to secure a culture, that is a pure product of bacteria, or what you might call a bacterian yeast, which could be bottled and carried about, and stored, and planted in any soil where it might be wanted. The news now comes that he has succeeded, and what he calls "N! tragin" is now for sale. It can be had for a very small sum, indeed-enough to nitragenize an acre for less than $" This pure culture is placed in contact with the seed before the latter is sown and worked into the soil to a depth of three inches. The culture, which wa might just as well call yeast, is kept in bottles, and must not be exposed to light or to heat above 98 degrees Fahrenheit.-N. Y. Independent

There was much noise and horse play, in which Middletown firemen and boys who hope to be firemen some day joined, but it was all harmless and good natured and much of it was very amusing to those who happened to see it.

Practically all laws were off so far as the visiting firemen were concerned. The police made no effort to restrain them in their efforts to have a good time, and it was just as well that they did not, for ten officers to a block would not have sufficed to restrain the exuberance of the young men who were painting the

All the Middletown companies turned out with full ranks and presented a fine appearance, showing up well alongside of the visiting companies, which were the crack organizations of their respective

The line of march was a long one and the marchers were pretty well tired out before they reached the stand at the fire houses on East Main street, where they were reviewed by Mayor Stansbury, the Common Conneil and the officials of other cities and villages, wao were in town.

After the parade had been dismissed the several companies took their guests to their headquarters, and after rest and 4,000 for an addition to refreshment, they were escorted to the banquets that had been prepared in their at 8:10 o'clock last night; the Pioneers

MONHAGEN'S DINNER.

Monhagens and their guests, Crystal Hose Company, banqueted at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. The dinner was served by W. R. Rowley, and was first class in every respect.

President Hornbeck was the toastmaster and made a brief address, after which he announced the following toasts: "City of Scranton," responded to by E. E. Rolathan, Scranton; "City of Middletown," W. B. Royce, Middletown: "Crystals." Mr. Newman, Scrauton; "Toughs," Recorder Bradner, Middletown: "Scranton Girls," H. E. Koelsler, of Scranton, and Z. K. Greene, Middletown; "Councilmen," R. Robinson, of Scranton; "Laws," W. F. O Neill, Esq., of Middletown; "Free Silver," A. M. Payne, Middletown: "Monhagen Water, W. H. Rogers; "Fire Department," Chief Hickey, or Scranton; "Monhagens for Monhagens," Rev. Dr. W. A. Robinson, Middletown; "Middletown Girls," M. M. Finn, or Scranton.

It is conceded by all present at Monlangen's banquer that the post-prandial speeches last night were the best in the company's lastory.

 $_{\mathrm{M}}$ 'QUOID'S BANQUET.

McQnoid Engine company had a banquet in honor of their guests at the Assembly Rooms after the parade. It was served by F. J. Neavn, and is conceded by all who partook of it to have been as fine a spread as was ever served in this city on firemen's day.

President Nearn made a brief speech, on which he expressed the pleasure Mc-Quoid's felt in having the Nagara's as their guests at the festal board. He first introduced Recorder Bradner, who made an excellent speech. He was followed by President Mullen, of Niagara's; Rev. Philip O'Haulon, of this city; Col. Campbell, of Pittston, and M. J. Donovan, Esq., and Dr. T. S. Gillson, of this city.

After the banquet the tables were cleared away and the McQuoid's and their guests and the lady friends of the company danced until a late hour this

WAALKILLS' BANQUET.

Waalkills and their Ellenville guests dined in the Casino, where a very fine repast was served by Mrs. Dolloway, proprietor of the restaurant at 17 James street, and Mrs. Henry Reeve. C. Macarpell, president of Waalkills, acted as pressive of the pleasure which it gave his company to have as guests such a fine hody of men as the Ellenville firemen.

Rev. George C. Betts, of Goshen, responded in behalf of the Ellenville firemen, making an eloqueut and appropriate address.

Dr. Talcott was the next speaker. The doctor is apt and eloquent on any and alloccasions and is at his best in an after dinner speech, but he was never more ready and felicitous than he was last

The next and last speaker was George H. Decker, Esq. His speech was a most eloquent and feeling tribute to the invaluable services rendered by the late James N. Pronk in organizing the Middletowa fire department and putting it from the very beginning on the high plane on which it stands to-day and which makes it a model of which a volunteer fire department should be.

At the conclusion of the speech making the Casino floor was cleared and until a late hour the Waalkills and their guests and members or other companies and their guests danced the hours away. The ball was a great social success and was a very pleasant feature of the day.

EXCELSIOR'S BANQUET.

Excelsions and their guests, Young Americas, dined in George Dorrance's laundry building. The ladies of the W. C. T. U. were the caterers, and served a fine collation. The failure of the incadescent light service made it necessary for the ladies to light the hall with such lamps as they could procure on short notice, but this slight drawback in no way interiered with the firemen's enjoyment of the dinner or the speeches that follow⊬d it.

J. C. R. Taylor, Esq., acted as toastmaster and acquitted himself most creditably. Henry Kroeger, President of Young Americas, responded to Mr. Taylor's opening address. He as followed by Rev. Dr. Beattie chaplain of Excelsiors, who made one or his most felicitous addresses. The next speaker was J J. Masterson, of Young Americas. Ira L. Case then spoke for Excesiors, and was followed by L. E. Thompson, Chief of the Poughkeepsie Fire Department. C. C. Lutes was the next called upon and made a very beat speech. The last speaker was George W. Davids, of the Poughkeepsie Engle.

PHENIX ENGINE CO.

Phonix Engine Co. and their guests, the Lindens of Pass_ic, dined at Columbia Park, the banquet being under the direction of Rev. C. M. Winchester, There was an abundance of good things and it was well served.

Speeches were made by President Isoman, Chaplain Heath, C. J. Thayer and Ira Clanson, of Phonix, and several members of Lindens.

ONTARIO HOSE COMPANY,

Ontarios and their guests, the Neversinks, dined at Nicholson's Hall, the Ontario Ladies' Auxiliary furnishing the banquet. It was a fine spread, indeed. President Funnell spoke briefly and then called upon W. H. Wyker, of Goshen, who was a special guest. Rev. J. W. Norris. chaplain of the company, followed. Then came Foreman Malven, of Neversinks. who spoke briefly and then called out Jacob May, who made a good speech.

-The first company to leave town was the Beacons, of Matteawan, which left and Kimbles, of Ellenville, left at 11:20 o'clock last night. The Neversinks, of Port Jervis, at 9:34 o'clock last night: the Lindens, of Passaic, at 10:40 last night: the Crystals, or Screnton, and Niagaras, of Pittstown, at 10:55 this morning. The Young Americas will stay with us until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

A FALSE ALARM OF FIRE.

The Bell Rang 54, But That Box Was Not Pulled-A Visiting Fireman's Joke. About 9 o'clock this morning the fire alarm rang 54, and since this is one of the boxes which calls out the whole department, all the companies and crowds Goods. of visiting firemen were soon on the There was no fire and the firemen had their ran for nothing.

It is not known who sent in the alarm nor from which bex it was rung. Box 54, which is on North street in front of Empure Block, was not pulled, for a gentleman who was on the opposite side of the street says that no one was near the box when the alarm was sounded, nor had anyone been near it for some nunutes before the bell rang.

It is generally believed that a visiting fireman, who had a key to the boxes and who understood how to ring in any call that he desired, opened a box away from the center of town and rang a general alarm by sounding 54.

It his purpose was to see if Middletown firemen were prompt in responding to alarms, the result must have been satismetory, for the boys got there in great ьћаре.

AUTUWN JACKETS.

This is the season of the year for

covert and box coats, those smart little garments which when well made pre so extremely stylish. There is not a great deal of change from year to year in the cut of the covert-coars. They are two inches longer this autumn than they were hist spring, but the same stape is worn, and they fosten under a flap just the same way. The steeves. however, are decidedly smader. The box coats, which are also light-colored. are of the smooth cloth, have a let-in velvet collar of the exact shade of the coat, and, as a rule, are double-breasted, iastened with big fancy bone or pearl buttons. They are made with strapped seams, a full back-that is, full skirts to the back-and the smartest are lined with white satin. As these coats are not intended for hard wear, the white satin is not so inappropriate as it sounds. The covert-coats, on the contrary, which do receive hard besige, have fancy linings, but of dark colors. As a rule, it is safer to have these conts made by some tailor, but occasionally they can be bough, ready-made and with considerable style to them. There is again an attempt to introduce the shapeless coat, which hangs apparently from the shoulders without any fit whatever. Three or four of the swell houses have these coats on exhibition, but the style is too exaggerated and extreme to suit a refined taste, and is unbecoming to everybody. The shapeless long box-coats which are occasionally seen at the open-air horse shows in the autumn look rather smart, and on top of a coach such a coat seems appropriate; but when anyone is buying one carment to suit several occasions, anything in the least conspicuous should be carefully avoided.

There are many styles of block jackets for the autumn which are extremely pretty. One double-breasted and quite short resembles closely a riding tabit. This is made of smooth cloth, lined with bright sptin. The sleeves are quite small, and the seams are strapped. It is exceedingly severe, but very chic. There are some in rough cloths also tight-fitting, and bound all round with broad braid, above which carrow braid is put on in a scalloped design. These jackets are fastened with black froms. and are always becoming, and took well with any style of skirt. They are perbaps the best investment possible, for an interlining of fannel makes them warm enough for winter wear with a fur boa or collar.-Harper's P. zar

A DAUGHTER'S MARRIAGE.

The departure of a son from beneath

The Sense of Loss Parents Feel When Their Girls Are Gonc.

the paternal roof does not present any spectacle of desolation. Masculine life has, from infancy, an individuality, an independence, an exotism, so to say, which is essentially wanting in female existence. When a son abandons his parents, to create for himself a separate interest, this separation causes but little interruption in their mutual relations. A man marries, and still maintains his friendships, his habits and h a filial effections. Nothing is changed in his life; it is only an additional tie. His departure is, consequently, a mere simple separation; while the departure of a young girl, become the wife of a few hours, is a real desertion-a desertion with all its duties and feelings still fresh about it. In one word, the son is a saplings bigh has always grown apart from the trunk; while the daughter has, on the contrary, formed an essenvial portion of it, and to detach her from her place is to mutilate the tree itself. You have surrounded her youth with unspeakable tenderness—the exanustices tenderness of your paternal and maternal hearts; and she, in recurn, has appeared to pour forth upon you both an equally inexhaustible gratitude; you loved her beyond all the world, and she seemed to cling to you with a proportionable affection. But one day, one ill-omened day, a mun arrives, invited and welcomed by yourselves; and this man of your own choice carries off to his domestic eyric your gentle dove, far from the soft nest which your love had made for her, and to which hers had ching. On the morrow you look around you, you listen. you wait, you seek for something which you cannot find. The cage is empty; the tuneful linuet has flown; silence has succeeded to its melodious warblings; it does not come as it did only on the previous morning, fluttering itperfumed wings about your pillow, and awakening you by its soft caresses. Nothing remains but a painful calm, a painful silence, a painful void. The chamber of the absent darling offers only that disorder which is so melansholy for a mother to contemplate; not the joyous and impatient disorler of occupation, but that of abandonment.-Household Words.

Notes About Pashion.

The godet bodice, with its full pep-'um, is vanishing, but skirts to waists will be among the autumn fashions. Oats, wheat and even corn leaves are seen in some early autumn millinery, notably in hats that come out from London.

Boleros and jacket bodices which have been of lace through the summer now show in velvet to be worn over vests of sheer batiste embroidered in Renaissance patterns.

The separate bodice of silk is down in the list of autumn must-haves, again to replace the faithful cambric and batiste waist. The only novelty about them is that they will tone rather than ontrast with their accompanying kirts.—Chicago Record.

It Might Be Lying. "Do you think she prevaricates?"

"I don't know. How much is she vorth?" "What has that to do with it?"

"Everything. It depends largely upon her wealth and position in society as to whether it is exaggeration, prevarication or plain lying."-Chicago Post.

PICKPOCKETS AT THEIR WORK.

Mayor Bownian, of Pittston, Relieved of His Watch-Other Victims of the Light

Pickpockets did a very fively business last evening at the Euc depot as the crowds were departing, a they did nothing during the day. Even the dignity of Mayor Bowman, of Pittston, did not protect him. The Mayor left town on No. 8 tor New York and when he arrived at Greveourt telegraphed S. G. Memory, who is a personal friend, that he had been relieved or his wallet as he was about to board the train

J. H. Middlebrook telegraphed Capt. Gould no a Goshen that his watch had been stolen at the depot

Later a dispatch was received from an Err detective in Jersey City that Samuel Burnett, the boot and shoe dealer on East Main street, had also been "touched" for his watch at the depot-

Thus for these are the only victims of It kpockets we have heard on but there were doubtless others. If was certainly an inviling field for these gentry. People were packed together in the street like surdiags in a box, and a clever thief could have to ped a harvest, and probably did, tor most people never tell their losses, as heath everybody belongs to tha class who believe they are too. smart to be made victims or by the light impered iellows

YOUNG AMERICAS HAVE FUN.

How the Liveliest Firemen Ever in Middletown Keep Things Moving.

Young Americas seem to have had more fun than any of the visiting companies. They are a very lively lot of firemen and have not been quiet many minutes since tiey reached town. They will not 'e v until late this afternoon and they have seen to ic to-day that the town did not stagnate and forget that they were still

This morning, after the fire alarm, they equipped themselves with brooms and other trophies and headed by their band paraded through the principal streets. stopping to serenade and cheer the news-

This afternoon a party of them hitched a rope to a carman's truck and ran with it through the streets "hitting it up" as it life and property both depended on their 'getting there" in the shortest possible time. A ricketty old wagon drawn behad the truck added to the grotesque ness of the outfit and the apparent seriousness which inspired every man engaged in the boyish prank mad the performance very amusing to all who saw

Another large party had a high old time this afternoon in a tarmer's hav rigging and seemed to get more enjoyment. out of it than even my lady did out of her him carriage.

Young Americas will take back with them a varied collection of spoil. They have over a dozen banners, five or six flags, several hundred yards of bunting, a squash, a hobby-horse, a tea kettle, a berry crate, (which they prize highly on account of the difficulty with which it was secured,) several links of bologna, two beer mugs, a hundred brooms of assorted sizes, badges enough to set up a hundred takirs in business, several signs, a barber's pole and a varied collection of miscellaneous trophies "too numerous to mention.
